

TEMPLE BETH ABRAHAM

OCTOBER NEWSLETTER

From Rabbi Vaisberg's Study

Dear Friends,

This was one of the most meaningful holiday seasons I can remember. It was an honor to pray with a community of such spirit, with such beautiful voices, and to learn and teach Torah with all of you.

None of it could have happened without our immensely talented professional team and our exceptional volunteers, who worked tirelessly, publicly and behind the scenes, for the months leading up and on the days themselves. Ushering and greeting, taking honors, creating beautiful music, washing apples, polishing silver, rolling Torahs, assembling programs, cleaning our space over and over, planning security, handling the many financial and administrative needs, teaching and caring for our children, showing up in the little moments with kindness and help, and more: the village came through in shining colors. Thank you.

What made these days most special for me, though, was simply being in the room with all of you: your energy, your voices, your prayerfulness, your smiles. Spiritual energy doesn't come in a vacuum. It grows when a community gathers and each person's energy builds off everyone else's.

There's a story told of the great Hasidic master, the Baal Shem Tov, who once prayed so long that his disciples grew tired and slipped out. Afterward, he told them a parable. A man saw a beautiful bird at the top of a tall tree, and with no ladder, people climbed onto one another's shoulders to lift him up. Just as he reached for it, those at the bottom got bored and walked away, and the whole tower collapsed. The man fell, and the bird flew off. When you left, the Baal Shem Tov told them, that's what happened to me. I can only reach the heights I reach in prayer because you're there, holding me up.

So it is for all of us. The more we show up with our whole selves, the higher we can climb together. This High Holy Day season, we soared.

There's another moment when that kind of support makes all the difference: B-Mitzvah. I tell my students that becoming B-Mitzvah is getting their Jewish driver's license. Until now, their parents have been responsible for their Jewish lives. Once they've shown they have the basics down (reading and interpreting our sacred texts, leading prayer, taking on mitzvah projects), they get full access to our immense wealth of wisdom and ritual, and really become part of our global extended Jewish family. They'll also know that they're needed, in an empowered way, not as a burden but because they're valued: to volunteer, to give what they can, to help make the minyan. That's why a B-Mitzvah happens at a public service. The community is there to welcome a new member and to tell this young person how thrilled they are for them.

Cantor's Notes

How can a Sukkah become Chametz?

By the time you read this, Sukkot will be almost over. While Jewish tradition teaches that we build a sukkah in the earliest possible moment that we can once Yom Kippur ends, there is no prescribed requirement for when to take the sukkah down. In fact, the Mishnah instructs somewhat of a delay with regards to the deconstruction of the Sukkah. It teaches that one should not take down their sukkah on the last day of the holiday, because the commandment for dwelling in the sukkah carries through the entire holiday. However, one should begin removing utensils and other tableware from the sukkah in order to prepare for eating the post-holiday meal in the house. The sukkah is, of course, meant to be temporary.

We got a blatant reminder of the fragility of the Sukkah last year when we neglected to dismantle ours in a timely fashion. About a month after Sukkot ended, heavy winds – not unlike the ones we experienced last weekend – blew down our sukkah cracking some of the lattice. Needless to say, once that happened we brought the remainder of our sukkah down to our basement fairly quickly, making sure to order replacement parts immediately so that we were able to build this year's sukkah in a timely fashion!

When our sukkah fell last year, I was reminded of Rabbi Holtz's teachings on chametz. Chametz is unleavened bread, which we are not permitted to eat during Passover. But what makes something Chametz? When we prepare matzah for Passover, it must bake for no more than eighteen minutes. If it bakes for even one second longer, it becomes chametz. Why would we be talking about chametz on Sukkot? Rabbi Holtz often used chametz as an analogy for procrastination. If you don't do something in a timely fashion, it's highly possible that it can become too late to do it at all. For example, if you procrastinate on calling a sick or elderly friend or relative, it might eventually become too late. You never know how much time someone has left. In other words, when in doubt – make the call. Last year, we certainly rendered our Sukkah chametz, and we were forced to pay the price.

But sometimes a mindful delay is necessary. This year, it took until about halfway through Sukkot in order for us to put up our Sukkah. Better late than never! After seeing how easily our Sukkah toppled last year, we were worried about how our Sukkah would fare in last week's storms. We opted instead to assemble the lattice arches, but we didn't raise them or put on the schach (roof) until after the storm passed. And you better believe that this year we'll make sure to take it down in a timely fashion. But if the weather stays warm, we might keep it up to enjoy a few bonus meals to make up for what we missed at the beginning of the holiday.

Chag Sameach,
Cantor Lauren Phillips Fogelman

STESSA PEERS DIRECTOR OF EDUCATION AND YOUTH ENGAGEMENT

Purim is a holiday that we say is topsy-turvy. It is upside down and backwards and sometimes throws you for a loop.

So why am I talking about Purim in October?

Well, because this calendar year has felt a little like Purim! For the first time in decades, the High Holy Days preceded the start of Sunday Religious School, and with everything falling on the weekends, our first official Sunday isn't until Sunday, October 11!

And while it has felt a little Purim-y, it has also been very cool to experience the first time seeing one another this year on Rosh Hashanah, Yom Kippur, or Sukkot, rather than in our classrooms.

This year, our Rosh Hashanah Junior Congregation did things a little differently when it came to Tashlich. We bore each other's bread, if you will. Rather than only thinking about what each of us individually wanted to leave behind as we entered 5787, we leaned into the importance of community. We wrote those things on dissolvable paper, switched with someone else so that we were carrying something for one another, and then watched them disappear together (in a fish tank, of course!)

We also got to celebrate Sukkot together in a different way this year, with some of our educators, teens, and committees participating in our Sukkot Family Day. We welcomed families to TBA on the second day of Sukkot for a morning of celebrating, creating, learning, singing, doing mitzvot, and spending time together in our sukkah.

And all of these days have been building up to so many firsts: our first Wednesday with our 6th and 7th graders at the very beginning of September, our first Monday with our 4th and 5th graders and HaMakom (our teen Hebrew High program) at the end of September, our Madrichim (youth instructors) already coming together twice as they prepare to help lead our younger learners this year, our ZEEBO teen leadership board beginning their year together, and finally, coming up on October 11, our first official Sunday of Religious School!

So many Shehecheyanu (thankfulness for reaching new, joyful, or milestone) moments. So many firsts, or first times in a long time, and so many things that we have celebrated or marked in a new way thanks to this topsy-turvy calendar year.

5787 is going to be a good one, a unique one, and a year filled with Jewish community and joy at TBA, and I am so glad that we are finally getting started together.

L'Shalom,
Morah Stessa

HERE'S WHAT'S HAPPENING AT THE CGC

As the crisp autumn air settles in and leaves begin to swirl around us, October brings a beautiful season of change, growth, and reflection to The Children's Garden Center. Our classrooms—and our garden—are bursting with opportunities to wonder, explore, create, and learn.

The children have been joyfully observing the magical transformation happening right outside our doors. Fall has arrived in full color! We've been talking about why leaves change, feeling the cooler breezes, and noticing that the sun seems to be saying goodnight just a little earlier each day.

In our very own preschool garden, little hands have been busy exploring the fruits—and vegetables. Our carrots are stretching deep into the soil, while squash and pumpkins are growing plump and round. The children have taken great pride in watering, weeding, and caring for our plants. As any preschool gardener can tell you, checking on a pumpkin's progress is very serious business!

Harvest time offers such a meaningful opportunity for children to connect with nature and begin to understand the rhythms of the earth. We've talked about how farmers gather food in the fall, where our food comes from, and how patience and care help living things grow. Naturally, our harvest has also found its way into our art, conversations, and sensory play.

One of our favorite fall traditions is our "Everything Is Apple" Party!

We celebrated this delicious fall fruit in just about every way imaginable—apple stamping, apple stories, and, of course, apple tasting. Green, red, or yellow? Everyone had an opinion!

We even made homemade applesauce together. The children helped peel, mix, observe, and—perhaps most importantly—taste!

Our Rosh Hashanah celebrations gave us an opportunity to talk about new beginnings, kindness, and the sweetness we hope to bring into the year ahead. The children learned traditional greetings, dipped apples in honey, and shared some of the things they hope for in the coming year. We were especially fortunate to welcome Rabbi V and Cantor Lauren for our Shabbat and holiday blessings!

As we move to Sukkot, we look forward to the special experience of eating together in the TBA sukkah. Sitting outdoors, singing songs, hanging our harvest artwork, and sharing food beneath the sukkah creates a beautiful connection between our learning, our community, and the natural world. These simple moments of togetherness often become some of the most meaningful ones.

With the spirit of renewal in mind, each child began a special New Year Journal—a place to draw, write, wonder, and imagine what they are curious about and hope to learn this year.

This year is especially meaningful for me, not only because it's my first at Temple Beth Abraham, but because it's my first as the father of a B-Mitzvah student. Nava's Bat Mitzvah will be on October 31 at a synagogue near our home and her school, but it matters deeply to us to celebrate with our new synagogue family.

Please join us for Shabbat services and a special oneg on Friday, October 23, at 7:30 PM. All are welcome. If you can, please RSVP to Irene Metz, Clergy Coordinator (email clergyassistant@tba-nj.org or call (914) 631-1770 x106 by October 9. It is surreal and humbling and unbelievably meaningful that after officiating at more than 400 B'nai Mitzvah, I get to be the proud father who, for most of the service, will sit in the pews and kvell.

Thank you for being such a special community and our family's new spiritual home.

L'shana tova and Chag Sameach,
Dave

It has been wonderful to see their minds at work as they express their ideas, dreams, observations, and questions through their artwork. These journals will stay with us throughout the school year, giving the children opportunities to revisit their thinking and recognize how much they have learned and grown.

This practice connects beautifully with our Reggio Emilia philosophy: we value not only what children learn, but the questions they ask, the ideas they develop, and the many different ways they communicate their thinking.

As we move deeper into fall, we are reminded that this season mirrors so much of what happens in early childhood—change, discovery, growth, letting go, and planting seeds for what comes next.

L'Shana Tova and Happy Fall!

With gratitude,
Melissa McHugh, M.Ed/EdL

Tikkun Olam: Repair the World

L'Shanah Tova TBA. I wish you well in the new year and hope that you have had a chance to meet Rabbi Vaisberg and enjoyed services on the HHD. Tikkun Olam is off to a great start thus far. In September, we collected backpacks and supplies for the Pre-k students in Tarrytown. We were able to donate 30 backpacks filled with notebooks, folders, markers and other necessities. Thank you so much to all of the TBA members who participated in this drive.

Our focus for September and October is food insecurity. September 27 was our first event this year for the Tarrytown Sleepy Hollow Food Pantry. We collected spices and cooking oil and the Religious School students created snack bags for the families. We also had our annual food drive for Feeding Westchester that kicked off on Yom Kippur. This was a financial drive as donating money allows the food bank to buy more efficiently. They can get much more for the money than we can. If you would still like to help, here is the link: bit.ly/TBA-YK-FoodDrive.

In October we are hosting a midnight run on October 24. Midnight run is an activity that helps provide a meal to unhoused people. We provide food, clothing, toiletries and friendly faces! We still need lots of volunteers to make sandwiches, donate items and to go out on the run to deliver everything. Here is the link to sign up: tinyurl.com/TBA-MR-Oct26.

In November and December, we will be focusing on immigration. The mitzvot are: loving thy neighbor and helping the stranger. We will be kicking off our Light One Candle Donation program, and we are excited that we will be supporting gifts of toys and books this year. More details to follow in next month's bulletin, so please keep an eye out for it. We are in the process of planning other things for the fall as well and will be letting you know about them, so check out the weekly e-blast as well.

If you would like to join Tikkun Olam, please let me know at Tikkunolametba-nj.org or call the office. TBA is a caring community so please, get involved with Tikkun Olam.

Audrey Gelfand
Tikkun Olam Chairperson

A great success!

Yom Kippur Food Drive

On Yom Kippur, we set aside food and drink to focus on prayer, reflection, and renewal. Our tradition reminds us, however, that fasting is not meant to end with ourselves. The hunger we feel makes us aware of those for whom hunger is not symbolic but a daily reality.

This year, we encourage you to support those in need by donating directly to Feeding Westchester by scanning the QR code or at bit.ly/TBA-YK-FoodDrive

for Shabbat

Consider inviting Rabbi V and his family to your Shabbat table. It's a meaningful way to welcome them into our community and spend some time together outside of synagogue.

Rabbi Vaisberg and his family don't yet live locally and commute from New Jersey, so hosting them for Shabbat dinner is a wonderful mitzvah, and a great way to get to know them too!

You don't need a kosher home or a fancy meal. Vegetarian, dairy, fish, and pasta are all easy options. If you're serving meat, it does need to be kosher. And if you have questions about their dietary needs, just ask, we're happy to help!

LEAVES FOR LIFE CYCLE EVENTS ON OUR TREE OF LIFE

Our synagogue is proud to possess the Etz Chaim, our Tree of Life. This original sculpture by the noted synagogue artist, Sanford Werfel, is permanently displayed in the Temple Beth Abraham lobby. The branches of the tree contain leaves that may be inscribed to highlight or commemorate such joyous events as births, weddings, anniversaries, b-mitzvot, graduations or simply to honor parents, family, or friends. Share your happy occasions by inscribing your family simchas on our synagogue's Tree of Life as a permanent dedication to the meaningful and happy events that touch the lives of our community. Please note that the creation of a leaf may take up to 8 weeks.

The price per leaf is $360.00 for members and $450.00 for non-members.

For more information, please call the Temple office at (914) 631-1770
